With these tools, this company does one thing: engineers and builds a limited number of high-end diesel motorcoaches.

Engineered Art

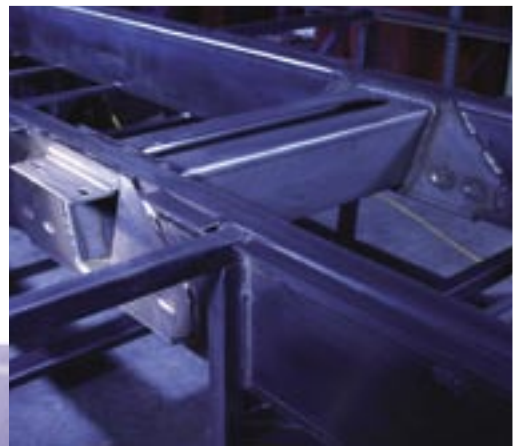

The DynoMax® chassis represents the motorcoach industry's first and only symbiosis of art and engineering. A hybrid of two distinct chassis technologies, each DynoMax® benefits from both. First, the DynoMax® features a semi-monocoque design forged with top grade, high yield steel tubing. Creating a cradle of strength, this structure spreads the vehicle weight throughout the steel, resulting in a sound, stable coach. In addition, 8″ or 10″x3″x1/4″ steel stringers provide the front-to-back rigidity found in more traditional chassis designs, while raising the bar yet higher with their stronger tubular (not "C" channel) design.

5 year/50,000 mile limited structural chassis warranty

In the Inspire 330, the DynoMax® is mated with the Caterpillar C-9 400HP diesel powerplant and Allison 3000MH transmission, offering 1100 lb/ft of torque, flattening out steep mountain passes.

Each DynoMax® is assembled with meticulous attention to detail. Each stitch weld is precise, made with clean, circular beads. Rust inhibitor is applied before the engine, wiring or plumbing hoses are installed, avoiding pitfalls of overspray. At the end of the line, every chassis makes a stop at the DynoMax®'s namesake, the DynoCenter. Here, each chassis undergoes a gamut of dynamometer tests to ensure that the Country Coach it carries will operate at peak performance.

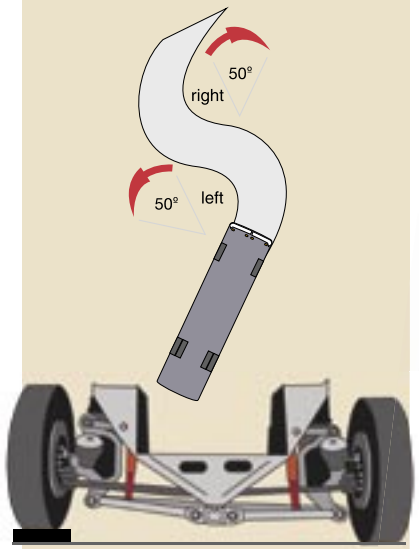

The Science of Smooth

The legendary smooth, responsive drive of the DynoMax® chassis is no accident. Incorporated into the design of each Inspire 330 is the Holland-Neway IFS (Independent Front Suspension) system. Isolating the irregularities of the road from transferring across the coach or up the steering column, each wheel's double-wishbone suspension works independently. What's more, the offset IFS design allows maximum travel for the large air springs and adjustable shock absorbers, breaking the line of shocks-wheels-walls and absorbing more road shock before it reaches the riders above.

Laminated Strength

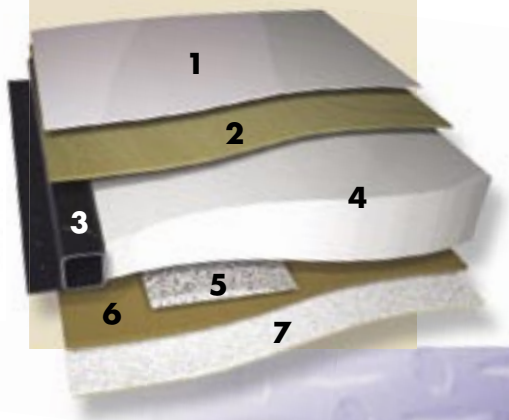

The Inspire 330's floor, walls, and ceiling provide structural strength, insulation and protection unparalleled in the motorcoaching world. Country Coach employs a vacuum bonded, laminated process integrating high-yield steel tube framing, high-density styreen insulation, and other quality components. The resulting cage of strength helps keep cabinetry square, tile and grout in place, the weather and noise outside and the comfort inside.
