ROBALO

Robalo & Yamaha

Partners In Performance

When the task at hand is taming big seas, weathering the tough marine environment and delivering unmatched performance, two names stand out above the rest: Robalo and Yamaha. Robalo relies exclusively on Yamaha for good reason, there isn't a more time-tested or seaworthy source of power. Combine Yamaha's reliability, performance and high tech engineering with Robalo's legendary Hydro Lift™ bottom design and you've got a combination that can't be beat. Robalo takes advantage of a sharp keel and wider strakes to create maximum control and efficiency. Rivals use narrow lifting strakes that create extra spray and inefficient overall performance. Additionally, reducing deadrise on the outer edges of the planing surface in combination with a reversed chine creates phenomenal stability at the all-important low end.

ROBALO

All Fish Boats Aren't Created Equal

Almost every fish boat brochure has a construction section. Most are the same. Why? Frankly, there's not much difference in their boats. Sporting a well-earned reputation for premier quality, all Robalos are a combination of precise robotic manufacturing and handcrafted excellence. While rivals hesitate to peel back the gelcoat and delve into specifics, Robalo never shies away. What separates Robalo from the pack? The most noteworthy extra is Kevlar® reinforcement. Known for its incredible strength and light weight, Kevlar is used in the production of bullet proof vests and a variety of other applications where maximum strength matters. In addition to Kevlar, we use a premium gelcoat for superior resistance to yellowing, fading and chalking. Hydropel, a modified acrylic epoxy resin, keeps your new boat looking new longer by resisting penetration. Built to last, Robalo's decks, hulls, and structural systems are constructed with an assortment of the most high-tech composite corings and materials creating a rot free construction. Closed cell foam exceeds minimum basic flotation requirements. Rarely used on competing models, Robalo utilizes Spraycore as an extra laminate behind the gelcoat to helps ensure a smooth, high gloss outside finish. Inside, all cushions and upholstery are built in-house using the highest grade vinyl in the marine industry. All vinyl pieces are treated with Duralife Max Surface Protection to create a barrier against stains and to provide UV protection. Under the vinyl, high density foam is supported with flow foam for quick drying. Additionally, all of our upholstery is treated with Bioproof to prevent molding and premature aging.

Fish Don't Stand A Fighting Chance

The marine environment is demanding, particularly in saltwater. Built to last, from the bow eye to the aft cleats, all Robalos are fitted with stainless steel hardware. We even chrome plate all of our stainless steel fasteners. Some would call that overkill, at Robalo we wouldn't dream of doing it any other way. How about rod storage? Robalo ranks best-in-class. Our R300 proves the point with storage for 30 rods standard. Additionally, no fish boat builder does a better job at livewell design. High volume dedicated pumps and oversized circuit-protected wiring combine with blue gelcoat, see-thru lids and LED lighting to create the ultimate fishing experience. A fish locker is a fish locker right? Wrong. Designed to keep ice from prematurely melting, all insulated fish lockers are encapsulated in at least two inches of closed cell foam. Heavy-duty gas-assist stainless steel struts allow easy access and are a real plus in big water. Because sand, sea grass, trash and debris can wreak havoc with onboard systems and cause premature pump failure, Robalo uses a cast bronze strainer system with a stainless steel removable screen. All Robalo models meet or exceed the requirements for either Level floatation or basic floatation. Diamond plated nonskid guarantees sure footing. All Robalo models have self bailing cockpits with quick draining capabilities. Stainless steel grab handles are positioned in key locations for added stability.
